Ruffianism in Philadelphia.

(From he North American, Murch 1)

A triffing five occurred on Sunday afternoon in a segar store on Second street, near the Garmantown road, at which two gamps of ruffinas came into cellision. These pages are respectively known as Badgers and Kangers. While the rowdies were veryaged in pitching pell mell into such chips, Mayor thenry chanced to come in sight. The Mayor saited into the crowd and necked a ruffina just she was raising his arm to hart a bruckbat. The ruffina medestock to resist, but the Mayor took him by the seeklift and as sheeked him.

A shower of bricks was thrown at the Mayor, but, fortunately, he was not hart, while the ringleader of the gang, a man named James Lipsch, was captured and taken into suntody. He was afterwards taken before a magistrate, and haid to bail in the summ of 25,000. The two gangs of ruffinase, between whom the fight occurred, are becoming dangerous. They are mainly composed of idle and dissolute young men, a clean of society whose depredations are greatly to be dreaded. We publish this morning on the second page, the reply of Rev. H L Hammond to Dr. How-ard; also a letter from John H. Kinzie, Esq.

New Hampshire.

The Times utters a dismal howl of disappointment over the result of the New Hampshire election. It had calculated confidently on a "Douglas victory." It pacifies its wrath by villifying the people composing the great Republican party of the Granite State, and finally draws consolation from the silly and preposterous notion that ere long New Hampshire will return to her former allegiance to

He is consort of the control of preposterous notion that ere long New Hamp-shire will return to her former allegiance to the cotton lords of the South, and eat dirt. The Times threatens the sturdy reomanry of that brave little State with the vengeance of the breeders of slaves if she continues in her robellious ways. They will refuse to sell her cotton, or buy the fabrics of her artisans, cotton, or ony the labrics of her artigate, says the Times. They are "pinching" her now, cluckles the scurvy doughface; and when the "people suffer more pecuniary evil—and they ought to suffer " for their contumney toward the cotton lordling; — " they will hasten back to the embrace of the old airpres-breedies. and when she had no sewerage and no sanitary regulations, the practice of making the streets and alleys the places of deposit of all unclean things was natural enough; but since the population has so much increased, and since a system of sewerage is in part completed, a continuation of the fifthy and now deadly habit is so reprehensible that it ought not to be borne. The manner in which St. Louis has opposed the Rock Island bridge clearly proves that her hostility springs not from any real obstruction it presents to the navigation of the Musicaippi. It is plain that she is only anatons to prevent the bridging of that river anywhere, that may control its commerce as herotofore for all time to come, Granfing that for her own selfish purposes our sister ofty might tax immensely the commerce of the vast country west of the Musicaippi with bost of transhipment and fibriage, and often in winter with several days delay, the mail service alone must soon demand the bridging of all the rivers in the country morth of the lattinde of St. Louis. Owing to the gorning of the toe during the past whiter it was impossible to get the mail, people or goods of any kind scross the Missispipi at Rock Island by any means whatever, except the bridge, for nearly three weeks together. In this regard therefore the Rock Island bridge of the treaty a mailoual necessity.

We reiterate in conclusion all the kind sentiments heretofore expressed towards St. Louis; but if the Chamber of Commerce of that eity are determined to hreak down the Rock Island bridge at all hazards, we sak four own Roard of Trade whether they have caran fine.
